The map identifies land that is defined as prime farmland, but are important for the production of food, feed, and fiber crops. Prime farmland is land that economically produces high yields of prime farmland and has the potential to produce high yields of high value food, fiber or horticultural crops. This potential may be realized in the future through DSS (Development of Systems of Sustainable Agriculture) research, educational, and outreach activities.

DATA SOURCES

- U.S. Department of Agriculture, Natural Resources Conservation Service, UConn

EXPLANATION

The map is intended to provide a visual representation of prime farmland soils. The data used to create the map is based on a combination of aerial photography and ground-based observations. The map is not to be used for legal or financial transactions.

LEGAL DISCLAIMER

The map is not intended to be used for legal or financial transactions. The map is not intended to be a replacement for professional advice or services. The information on the map is based on the best available data and is subject to change. The user is responsible for verifying the accuracy and applicability of the information provided.

NOTICE

This map is for educational and informational purposes only and should not be used for legal, financial, or other professional advice or services. The user is responsible for verifying the accuracy and applicability of the information provided.

CONTACT INFORMATION

For more information, please contact the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station or the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Natural Resources Conservation Service.

LEGAL DISCLAIMER

The map is not intended to be used for legal or financial transactions. The map is not intended to be a replacement for professional advice or services. The information on the map is based on the best available data and is subject to change. The user is responsible for verifying the accuracy and applicability of the information provided.

NOTICE

This map is for educational and informational purposes only and should not be used for legal, financial, or other professional advice or services. The user is responsible for verifying the accuracy and applicability of the information provided.

CONTACT INFORMATION

For more information, please contact the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station or the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Natural Resources Conservation Service.